OUR TICKET.

Owing to our limited space to-day, we have barely time to call attention to the array of worth, of talent, of integrity, of honor, embraced in the names of the gentlemen who compose our State ticket.

We on yesterday spoke more at length of the eminent and able leader who is to bear our banner through the fight during the Summer campaign. That he will bear it right worthily and nobly, we have not a particle of doubt. The voice of the people—speaking through their delegates, has proclaimed that Merrimon is their first choice, and we shall be found by his side, in the thick of the fight, giving him all the aid in our power and striking whenever we can deal a blow in defence of North Carolina.

For Lieutenant Governor, we have Major John Hughes, of Newbern, a gentleman of commanding presence, polished and urbane manners, a lawyer of ability and experience, a bold and forcible speaker, a pure, high-toned, chivalrous gentleman. He was the Democratic elector in 1868, and made a fine reputation as a debater and canvasser.

The Attorney General, Hon Wm. M. Shipp, sans peur, sans reproche, is a gentleman too well known throughout the State for us to speak in his praise, as his unanimous and enthusiastic nomination at Greensboro' attests what a deep hold he has on the affections of our people, and how faithfully and ably he has discharged the duties of his office. In 1870 Judge Shipp carried the State against the ablest leader of the Radical party, and for this the people of North Carolina will ever regard him with feelings of gratitude and admiration.

Gen. Leventhorpe is well known to our people as a gallant soldier and patriot, and his nomination for Auditor of State is but a poor tribute to his noble services in behalf of North Carolina in the late sanguinary contest.

John A. Womack, of Chatham, is an honest, clever gentleman, who will perform the duties of Secretary of State with fidelity and conscientiousness.

Dr. Mendenhall, of Guilford, is a gentleman of high reputation as a teacher and scholar, possesses much popularity and influence, and will doubtless make a capital Superintendent of Public Instruction.

J. H. Sepak, of this City, we know well, and no more appropriate selection could have been made in the nomination of Superintendent of Public Works.

Mr. Sepak is an energetic mechanic and a worthy representative of the working men of the State.

Upon the whole we are proud of our ticket. It would be difficult, if not impossible, to get a better one.

THE UNANIMITY OF THE CONVENTION.

It was universally remarked by those who attended it, that the Greensboro Convention was the largest, most harmonious and enthusiastic assembly of the kind of which we have any account in the history of the State.

From the commencement to the close of its deliberations, its proceedings were characterized by an absence of all selfish and personal considerations and by an honest and sincere effort on the part of the delegates to nominate the best and most acceptable candidates.

The motto—All for the cause—nothing for men, was adopted by the Convention, and no sooner was it apparent that the voice of the representatives of the people favored certain nominations than all opposition gave suddenly away and the friends of the less popular candidates would wheel into line, first county by county, and then amid loud cheering the whole Convention would ratify the choice by a unanimous vote. Such kind feeling, magnanimity, and self-sacrifice, were never before witnessed on similar occasions. We heard several of the oldest and most eminent men who had attended a large number of State Conventions, remark that in their long experience, the spirit of patriotism and self-abnegation manifested at Greensboro' they have never before seen equalled or approached.

It was a cheering and noble sight to witness that vast concourse of North Carolinians representing eighty-eight counties, crowding together around the altar of their Mother State, and vying with each other in their offerings to propitiate her sufferings and save her from farther degradation and ruin. It needed no invocation to the spirit of harmony to preside over the Convention. The Convention was harmony itself, and everything was subordinated to the grand and patriotic end in view—the duty of lifting up our poor old State from the dust and placing her on the high-way of prosperity, happiness and tranquility.

All else was forgotten—all else was lost sight of—and with one voice and one feeling the Convention adjourned amid deafening cheers for the success of our ticket.

LET US SEE IT.

We have a wily and unscrupulous foe to combat. Our enemy has massed his able columns in compact array. Under the terrible and tyrannical appeal of the party lash, over eighty thousand freedmen are bonded together in chains of political servitude more galling than any ever worn in the days of African slavery—because it is the slavery of the mind, not of the body. By this colored vote, the Radicals expect to carry the election by adding a small number of white office-holders and office-seekers, a few scattering political wavers that may be found in nearly every county of the State, who are clamoring for the "fish pots of Egypt" and whose souls lust after the honors, emoluments and perquisites of place and pelf. Show us the white man who is a Republican without office or who does not seek office, and we will show you a wonderful curiosity. We assert it boldly as our firm belief that nine-tenths of the men who go over to the Radicals in North Carolina, do so, not from principle, not from a love of truth, and honesty and honor, but on account of low, selfish, unhalloved, corrupt personal considerations—for sordid and mercenary purposes—from the love of position and power and filthy lucre.

But we need have no fears of the result in August if the white men of the State, who have heretofore remained at home on election day, will come forward and vote against Radicalism. We can bid defiance to the scallawag and carpet-bag vote combined with it—if the people of North Carolina will arouse from their supineness and put on their strength for the fray.

Let us see it, in every county, that every man who is opposed to Radicalism shall cast his vote on the first Thursday in August.

CAPTAIN JARVIS AT GREENSBORO.

The telegram about the speaking in the Court House at Greensboro' on Thursday night, was sent off before Hon. T. J. Jarvis arose to address the large crowd of ladies and gentlemen on that occasion. In response to loud calls, Capt Jarvis concluded the speaking by a stirring, eloquent appeal which did him much credit and made a most excellent impression. We shall allude to this occasion again.

Capt. Jarvis had many friends in the Convention who were anxious to present his name for Lieutenant Governor, but he persistently refused to allow this to be done.

We are pleased to see our friend, Mr. T. B. Kingsbury, of Oxford, in the city. We learn Mr. K. has been temporarily engaged to aid in conducting the Raleigh Sentinel. Mr. K's ability and skill as a writer, his fine literary taste and his scholarly attainments will be a valuable addition to any paper, and we congratulate our neighbor on securing the services of such an admirable newspaper conductor.

MAJ. GRAHAM, who has represented Orange so acceptably in the Senate, is deemed by his friends peculiarly fitted for Treasurer. He has an intimate knowledge of the financial matters of the State.

ONWARD—SUCCESS—TRIUMPH.

These were the talismanic words uttered by our distinguished nominee for Governor, at the close of his speech of acceptance on Thursday, at Greensboro.

Onward! Let us press onward in the great struggle on which we have just entered. We have everything to incite us to renewed zeal and activity. Our party has recently put forth a State ticket which is worthy of the support of every honest man in the State. We have everything to lose by defeat. The destiny of North Carolina for weal or woe, is in our hands. We can march forth to victory—if we will only press forward, and grasp the prize which is within our reach. Let our motto be work—work—WORK!

We have enlisted for the campaign. If defeat frown upon us, it will be caused by our own supineness and criminal indifference. We must not be sluggish in the mighty contest now impending. Let Forward be the battle-cry, and on the day of election the shouts of victory will peal from our Eastern lakes to Cherokee's cloud-capped peaks. Let Onward be inscribed upon our standards, and when the sun goes down on the first Thursday in August, his beams will fall upon a people redeemed from the thralldom of Radical despotism and tyranny.

But we shall not be satisfied with success merely. We want to achieve a grand and glorious triumph over the thieves, swindlers and petty despots who have lorded it over our people and attempted to keep them down in poverty and chains. We want to achieve such a victory as will drive Radicalism forever from our borders, so that it may no longer have "a local habitation and a name" in North Carolina. We can do this, if we will to do it.

In the eloquent language of our standard bearer, let us shout—Onward—Success—Triumph!

GOV. VANCE'S SPEECH.

Our stenographic reporter sends us for publication for this morning's issue a part of Gov. Vance's speech and we expect to publish to-morrow the balance of it.

We are also promised by him a full report of Judge Merrimon's speech as soon as he can write it out for publication.

We would be pleased to publish the other speeches delivered during the Convention if the gentlemen who made them will furnish us with copies.

We know our readers will thank us for yielding a large portion of our editorial columns to Gov. Vance's able effort.

The Accident to the Peace Jubilee Coliseum, at Boston.

We publish below an account, taken from the New York Herald, of the recent accident to the Peace Jubilee Coliseum, at Boston.

Fate and the elements seem to have combined against the international musical festival which was projected, and somewhat advanced, by the irrepressible Gilmore, of Peace jubilee fame. The mammoth Coliseum, in which the great festival was to take place, and which had within a few days begun to assume a definite shape sufficient to warrant completion in season for the great event, has to night been reduced to a conglomeration of mass of debris and ruins. The destroying element was wind, and not fire, and as the prostration of the structure was reserved until about half-past eight o'clock, the twenty-five hundred workmen usually employed on the premises had gone to their homes, and therefore a great human slaughter was prevented.

The gale, if such it may be termed, did not seem severe in the city, but in the neighborhood of the fated Coliseum it had a full sweep, from not only the Charles River, but from a vast space of country on the other side, and was therefore very severe. The structure, as far as it had progressed was in just that condition to receive the full brunt of a gale, and at this time it is fair to presume that it is no fault of the architects or builders that it yielded. Only one of the large trusses had been erected, and this was the largest and the one supporting the roof at the main end and entrance of the structure. On either corner, at this end, were large towers designed to be Gothicly ornamental rather than useful. These were all wholly completed, and the entire front or end of the whole coliseum was all boarded over, and not a small portion of the roof had also been finished. Some idea of the gigantic proportions of the truss may be formed when it is stated that it is about five hundred feet in length, semi-circular in shape and about two hundred feet high in the centre. The expense of building and raising this single truss alone, was about five thousand dollars, and was regarded as the most troublesome and tardy work that there would be on the whole building. Its weight was about forty tons, and when it fell, it not only ruined itself, but also destroyed other, and equally valuable frame-work in the vicinity. Only a few watchmen were on the ground at the moment the structure tumbled, and its violent swaying under the force of the destroying breeze warned them of possible danger. The large timbers began to crack for half an hour before the building yielded, and for several moments before it toppled the whole structure swayed violently. Finally there came a powerful gust, and the structure was hurled, the work of months was in a moment a heap of ruins. The crash was tremendous, and alarmed and terrified the whole neighborhood. The general impression was that there had been a terrible explosion in the city, and anticipations of human slaughter were numerous.

The wreck severed all the gaspings around the premises; and added to the confusion, excitement and alarm was a terrible darkness, and not until an alarm of fire had been sounded and lanterns furnished by the department could the full extent of old boreas' damage to the building be ascertained. Thousands of curious and alarmed spectators were instantly upon the ground, and the crowd increased in numbers until long after midnight. All the watchmen employed were found to be safe, and it is their impression that there was no one in dangerous proximity to the building at the time it fell. If, however, the calamity had occurred a few hours earlier, while the workmen were engaged, the sacrifice of human life would have been terrible.

The disaster is the chief topic of conversation, and the scene of the wreck has been visited by thousands of curious visitors. All fears that the postponement or abandonment of the great International Musical Festival will not be realized; for it is the purpose of Mr. Gilmore and his associates to go along with preparations just the same as if nothing had happened. The contract with the builders specifies that the structure shall be completed by the 10th of June, and they claim that, notwithstanding the delay occasioned by the accident, they will have it ready by that time. The original plans of the building have been modified, however, and instead of making it an arched structure it will be supported by pillars, the same as the coliseum of 1868. By building it in this style a much larger number of workmen can be employed simultaneously. The debris of the wreck caused by the falling of the truss on Friday evening, has all been cleared away, and the work of reconstruction commenced. Two gangs of men are employed alternately between the hours of four in the morning, and eight in the evening, and in a few days or so as soon as gas lights can be brought in requisition, a night gang will be added. The contractors are under heavy bonds to have their work finished at the time specified, and they do not for a moment doubt their ability to perform their obligation. The arrangements for the music and rehearsals of the various chorus societies and orchestra unions, are going on vigorously, and unless some other and unforeseen drawback occurs, the event will undoubtedly be the greatest in the musical annals of the whole world.

Remarks of Gov. Zeb. B. Vance, at Greensboro, on Wednesday, the 1st instant.

After the conclusion of the remarks of Judge Kerr, on taking his seat as Chairman, on Wednesday, in response to repeated and loud calls, Gov. Vance arose, amidst tumultuous applause, and said:

Mr. Chairman and Fellow-Citizens:

It was greatly desired by those who are managing the proceedings of this meeting that we should proceed to some practical work. It is so apparent that all are ready for work that I deem it best to—(cries of go on! go on!) I am going on.

The subject has already been exhausted by the two gentlemen who have addressed you this evening. You have been told of the desecration of civil liberty in your State; of the carpet-baggers and scoundrels trampling down the blood-bought rights of our ancestors; of the Holdens and Kirks and Deweeses. "And what more could I say, for the time would fail me to tell of Gideon and Barak and Sampson and Jephthah and David," who through faith stole railroads and whole States from the oppressed people of the South. (Applause.) Let me begin by propounding to you a conundrum. Can you tell me the difference between a church bell and a carpet-bag? (Laughter.)

You give it up! Well, the difference is just this: One peals from the steeple and the other steals from the people. (Laughter and applause.) The embraces the whole law and testimony in regard to the carpet-bag. Some people are perplexed to know why God should permit such creatures to live. It is to teach us a lesson of that patience and incomprehensible mercy of God, which allows even such creatures to live, and does not strike them down by lightning from Heaven.

But there is a difference between a carpet-bagger and a Radical from among our own people. If a carpet-bagger steals, there is some chance and excuse for it; but what can be said of a party which meets in Raleigh to approve of the stealing when they get more of the plunder themselves. They have stolen everything they could get from the State except the Capitol in which the Legislature holds a home-stand, and there is nothing else left now for them to steal.

The State has still a home-stand in the Capitol, and the Radicals have a home-stand in the Penitentiary. (Laughter.)

My honorable friend has spoken of the course, brutal and heinous, of the privateers, the cut-throats, the pirates, the same set as they came down through my country with banners flying, and a dirtier, uglier, lozier set of villains, I never saw. Fustian's body guard of ragamuffins were well dressed, highly perfumed, parlor gentlemen, compared with this party. (Laughter.) These fellows and their dogs have been endorsed by the Radical Convention in Raleigh. They have endorsed Abbott's claims to a seat in the U. S. Senate, when he only received 41 votes out of 113 that were cast. They recommended that a man who had received only that number of votes should represent you in the U. S. Senate, and represent you for six long years; but they reckoned without their host.

Just as soon as the Radical party heard that, they ousted that gentleman by a vote of 44 to 10. It was a little too strong for them. The circumstance reminded me of a fellow who stopped to spend the night with a pious old landlady, who was in the habit of saying grace. As soon as they sat down to the supper table the impatient traveller picked up his knife and fork and began to help himself. "Stop, my friend," said the landlady, "we are in the habit of saying something before we eat." "Well," said the fellow, "please, old friend," said the traveler, "you can't turn my stomach now." (Laughter.) But Abbott's endorsement by this Radical Convention did turn their stomachs in Washington, and they waited for grace. (Laughter.)

But to talk seriously, so many outrages have been committed upon the Southern people, that public indignation has been fatigued in trying to keep up with them. Therefore we have passed over almost in silence, what a few years ago would have set the whole land in a flame of indignation and resentment.

History gives many examples of people who have thrown off a foreign yoke, but even then they were not able to preserve the liberties which they had achieved, because they were not able when the strife was over to surround them with the safeguards necessary for their protection in times of peace. The encroachments upon civil liberty in the days of our ancestors, led them by constitutional enactments to guard those liberties by certain muniments, such as the writ of habeas corpus, the freedom of the press, the right of trial by jury, and the right of representation according to taxation, every one of which rights was held to be an element of the life and liberty of every subject. Our liberties can not be invaded until these rights are overthrown or denied. How could our distinguished chairman have been treated with such indignity if this writ of habeas corpus had not been trampled upon? How could the citizens of your State have been thrust into hateful dungeons if the liberty of the press had not been denied? How could your property have been stolen and the credit of your State ruined by fraudulent taxation, if the people had been allowed the right of taxation according to representation? How could they be branding the names of your honorable countrymen with infamy and incriminating them without legal process, if they had not deprived them of the rights of trial by jury?

Your liberties could not be destroyed without first destroying these muniments.

The idea seems to prevail that what we most need in the South is wealth—development of our resources, &c. The papers are full of it, the public speeches teem with it. Every lean hungry Yankee that comes down here begins to talk of developing this and developing that. You ought to have railroads, and they have tried to develop us by their railroads. (Laughter.) And they have done it, haven't they? (Repeated laughter.) They might make the whole land full of railroads, but they will not make our condition much better. Our people will not all believe this, but my dear unconverted friends, (laughter,) it is liberty we want, and railroads are not liberty.

I visited the great Northwest lately and beheld its wealth and progress, and found it very good indeed. But amid it all, the old fashioned ideas of liberty and constitutional government were fast fading out before the advances of centralization to which which they all seemed resigned. The accumulation of riches absorbs every other idea. But I tell you that no amount of wealth, no height of perfection in the arts and sciences, no degree of national glory or extent of empire can compensate for the loss or disregard of these simple but inestimable principles which guard our rights and liberties.

The history of the world confirms this truth. The Egyptians and Assyrians excelled us in their magnificent arts, but they were the veriest slaves the world ever saw.

The Huns excelled us in military prowess, but they were disgusting barbarians.

The Romans far surpassed us in extent of empire and national glory, but they were only free whilst they were poor. In the pride of their greatness and their ignorance they lost sight of their liberties and sunk into ruin and decay.

Roman liberty was born and flourished in the hovels of the Larian lakes, it perished in the palaces of the Caesars.

The Tartars were a set of fiends and witches, outcasts from society, yet they were mighty in military achievements. Mighty towns, empires, states and countries fell before their victorious marches.

This tendency to develop may be a tendency to ruin—a tendency to despotism and slavery.

The things we have to do are not to pile up great works of art, not to build palaces of luxury, but to preserve these muniments of our liberties by which the humblest man of our country shall not have a single footstep impeded in his labors for his family, nor a single private right invaded without due process of law.

All the use we have for armies and navies is to uphold the authority of civil law. The ships of war and troops of soldiers should be used, and only used, to preserve these "requirements of liberty"—to say to the arresting officer, you shall not put this man in a dungeon without due process of law—to subject them to the writ of habeas corpus. If you neglect these rights, or if you suffer them to be invaded with impunity or without protest, you may despair of liberty.

I was almost in despair of the liberties of this country, when I saw the people of the North calmly surrendering those principles in their blind hatred of the South; and if you dared to raise your voice in their defense it was stifled by fresh cries of treason, and even the President of the United States was threatened with imprisonment because he dared to hold that it was not in the legislative power of the government to override the judicial and executive authority. I confess I was almost in despair, but, thank God, there is a ray in the cloud.

That overcasts this downtrodden country.

WARRENTON HOTEL

FOR SALE.

In consequence of old age and infirm health for the last seven years, and not being able to attend to the duties of a hotel, I have resolved to sell the above property. It is located in the town of Warrenton, Warren county, N. C. The hotel contains some thirty rooms, and all necessary out-houses, and can accommodate from 50 to 75 guests comfortably. It is the only public house in the village. Warrenton is celebrated for its healthfulness, good society and schools. There are four churches of different denominations in the village, and it has been for many years a favorite resort of persons seeking health in summer and fall. This property will sell for more than any property of the kind ever offered to the public. I deem it useless to give a further description of the property, as a person desiring to purchase, can come and examine the premises. I am determined to sell.

The hotel will continue open for the reception of the travelling public, and I invite all health seekers, in the summer and fall, to visit me. My terms will be moderate. MRS. M. R. BROWNLOW.

SPECIAL FEATURES AND ADVANTAGES.

1st. No restriction on Residence or Travel. 2d. No extra charge on Lives of Females. 3d. Policies incontestable after Five Years. 4th. The Rates of Interest on the Funds of the Company are higher than those on the Funds of Companies located in other States, thus insuring larger Dividends to Policy Holders.

5th. The Directors and Officers of the Company are prominent NORTH CAROLINIANS, who are known to be men of INTEGRITY and WORTH.

6th. The Company is established on a solid and permanent basis, steps having been taken to increase the Capital Stock to $500,000.

7th. ALL THE FUNDS OF THE COMPANY ARE INVESTED IN THIS STATE AND CIRCULATED AMONG OUR OWN PEOPLE. This fact should commend the Company, above all others, to the North Carolinians. It is well known that hundreds of thousands of Dollars in Life Premiums are annually sent North to enrich Northern Capitalists, thus continually draining our people of immense amounts which should be kept at home. On this ground the friends of this Company confidently appeal to every son of the old North State, and ask their support for this Home Institution, which, while it offers substantially all the advantages of Northern Companies, helps to build up HOME INTERESTS.

PRAY FOR ME.

Fair, gentle friend, remember me,
When round the easement mournfully,
The night-wind's plaintive melody
Comes softly through the air:
Seemingly with spirit voice to say—
A voice like thine, so sweet the lay—
"Oh, breathe for him now far away,
A fond and fervent prayer!"

When memory restores the past,
And joys which were too bright to last,
And hearts in finest feelings cast,
For love and friendship given;
Then, when the thoughts that such must part,
Life closest to the mourner's heart,
While none may turn aside the dart—
Oh, pray for me to Heaven!

When night is blossomed in the dell,
And shines each starry sentinel,
The night-wind like an organ swell,
Waileth along the sea:
Then is the time to breathe thy prayer,
For angels wait to wait it there,
Mid that sweet orchestra of air,
From virtue's heart for me.

Cheerful People.

God bless the cheerful person—man, woman or child, old or young, illiterate or educated, handsome or homely, over and above every other social traits stands cheerfulness. What the sun is to nature, what the stars are to night, what God is to the stricken heart which knows how to lean upon Him, are cheerful persons in the house and by the wayside. They go unobtrusively, unconsciously about their silent mission—brightening up cars, omnibuses, ferry-boats, with happiness beaming from their faces. We love to sit near them, we love the glance of their eye, the tone of their voice; the little children find them out, oh, so quickly amidst the densest crowd, and passing by the knotted brow and compressed lip, glide near and lay a confident little hand on their knee, and lift clear young eyes to their loving faces. Many a man, when the cheerful person passes him, rubs his hand across his forehead, as if to clear away the tangled web the world has spun over his spiritual vision, and as his step grows elastic, says to himself, "after all what matters it—a little good more or less;—let us all love and be happy, and take it as God sends. This is not the end." Nor are we to suppose this cheerful person has always been exempt from trial, or that his cheerfulness is the product of insensibility. We have seen feet step lightly, which far back on life's journey had left bloody foot-prints. But there are smiles born of tears; rainbows brightest on the storm cloud; morn loveliest when gliding serenely from out threatening skies; violets sweetest whose birth place was a rock cleft. Those are they whom God and man love, whose souls have on the wedding-garment, ready when the Master of the feast bid doth. Like Him, opening wide the door of their hearts, and saying to the weary and heavy laden, "Come."

A negro, who was suspected of suspiciously meddling with his neighbor's fruit, being caught in a garden by moonlight, unpossessed his detectors by raising his eyes, clasping his hands, and pleading exclaiming: "Good Lord! this year darkey can't go nowhere to pray, any more, without being 'surtled'!"

The latest fashion at weddings is for a gentleman to present his daughter with a check for a large amount, which is displayed with the other presents, but taken back by the indulgent parent at the close of the reception.

Anna Brewster writes from Rome of an American visiting that city and inquiring if the amphitheatre was running. When told that it was in ruins, he exclaimed, "Oh, I see it's played out," and proceeded to draw consolation from his cigar.

A Cincinnati contemporary tells of a charitable man in that city who keeps a pair of dogs chained at his front door, so that poor people who stood to "get a bite" can be accommodated without taking the trouble to go in the house.

Here is a joke for country boys. Two Irishmen once saw a red-headed woodpecker peck away at an old stump. "Murder, Jenny!" exclaimed one of them to his companion, "just look at you buried; he's hammered his head till it's all a blaydu!"

A man named Jim Mace having been sent to the New York penitentiary for assault and battery, the champion has issued a card stating that he is not the individual. "When in private life, I sink the shop," says this just, indignant contrite of conks.

A wag out west who read that dry coppers, put into a bed of ants, would cause them to leave, put some in his mother-in-law's bed, to see if she would not go. He said she was there at last accounts.

"Ye are the children of the devil," was the text of a divine in the morning, and in the afternoon he said, "Children obey your parents."
